Welcome Back

The Early Childhood Center would like to welcome back all the returning and new families to the center. We hope that you enjoyed your summer. As we begin the new year we would like to start off with a ECC Family night Wednesday, September 28th from 5pm to 7pm at the ECC. We will have fun activities and education about car/pedestrian safety. Also, we will have a guest speaker come and talk about the treaties and why they are important to us today. Lastly, we will have our 2016-2017 Policy Council Elections. Dinner will be provided and prepared by our awesome cook. If you have any questions, please contact Cindy Garrity (ext. 251) or Jenny (ext.252) at 779-5030.

Policy Council 2016 - 2017

Are you a parent of a child of the ECC? Would you like to be involve in what is happening in the Red Cliff Early Childhood Center? We will be having our 2016-17 Policy Council Elections Wednesday, September 28th from 5 to 7pm at the ECC. There are 7 openings; 1 EHS Center Base, 2 Home Base, 2 Head Start, and 2 community reps. To be on the Policy council you can not be an employee or have an immediate family member working at the early childhood center. If you have any questions or would like to have your name put on the ballot contact Cindy Garrity (ext. 251).

Welcome back to school and to our new classroom! What a wonderful summer it was; all too short. We have enjoyed our home visits with you and were glad to hear about your good Summer Vacations.

Our new classroom is ready to go and will be a place of learning and fun. Some of the items and activities in Makwa will be very familiar to your children and some entirely new.

We look forward to another great school year!

NEWS AND PLANS

For the month of September we will be working on transitions from home to school, all about me and wild rice. We will do our best to make sure your child is comfortable with us and if there is anything to help that out please let us know!

We will be doing many activities through the year so please send your child with clothing that can get messy. Also, please send in TWO extra sets of clothing.

If you have any concerns or questions please give us a call at 780-771-5030 x241.

MIIGWECH for entrusting us with your child. We are looking forward to a great year!

—Ms. Nadine and Ms. Melissa

LITERACY FACT FOR THE MONTH:

ZERO TO THREE's National Parent Survey shows that nearly half of parents (45 percent) think that reading to children starts to benefit long-term language development at 2 years or older—about a year and a half later than it actually does. Research shows that the benefits of shared reading actually begin at about 6 months.

RE: Head Start Bus Transportation

I'd like to take this time to welcome back returning Head Start students and those that are just joining us for the first time! Head Start Bus transportation safety and precautions is a huge priority for the ECC and we would like to start the year with reminding and informing families of the following bus safety policies and practices:

- Children must be walked to and from the bus by an adult- this means a child may not get off the bus while you wait for them at the house door or walk to the bus in the morning alone while an adult watches from the house. Bus monitors and drivers DO NOT leave the bus.
- Children will only be released to authorized adults- this means that if you have an extended family member waiting at your home who is not on the authorization form, the driver will not release your child to them. Releases can be updated at anytime.
- Children should not bring food or toys onto the bus- this means children cannot bring the snack or breakfast they were eating with them onto the bus. Toys may be in backpacks and exceptions may be made for those children that require a security item such as a blanket or stuffed animal-please let us know if this is necessary so we can explain the dangers of bringing toys onto the bus and work out a plan that meets both the Head Start and child’s requests.
- Bus times are approximate- this means that when the ECC provides a time that your child will be picked up or dropped off it could vary by 10 or more minutes depending on the day. Variances such as number of children present that day, if there was an incident that day, if no one was home at a house, etc. could change the time. We apologize and hope that with good practice, times will become more routine for the convenience of everyone.
- Bus will wait 2 minutes at each home before going on- this means that at each bus stop the bus will wait approximately two minutes so please try to be ready and waiting.
- Report any bus changes to main office any time- this means if your child will be picked up or dropped off at a different location, please call 779-5030 and leave a message-bus drivers and monitors check messages before they leave the facility and someone will get the message.
- Use stop and go bus sign- please post the sign in a visible place for the driver to view. Turn to stop when your child coming to school on the bus and go when your child will be not riding the bus.

We look forward to safely transporting your child to and from school each day. If you have any questions or comments, please stop in anytime or contact myself at 779-5030 ext 230, your child’s teacher, or Terry. Miigwech for your cooperation and understanding of providing safe transportation to and from school.

There is more than one way to eat healthfully and everyone has their own eating style. Make healthier choices that reflect your preferences, culture, traditions, and budget. Choose fruits, vegetables, grains, dairy, and protein foods to get the most nutrition and meet your personal calorie needs. Aim for a variety of foods and beverages from each food group and limit saturated fat, sodium, and added sugars.

Everything You Eat and Drink Matters — Focus on Variety, Amount, and Nutrition

What and how much you eat and drink, along with regular physical activity, can help you manage your weight and lower your risk of disease.

Choose Foods and Beverages with Less Saturated Fat, Sodium, and Added Sugars

The saturated fat, sodium, and added sugars found in foods and beverages are important for you to think about as you build your healthy eating style. Saturated fat and sodium are sometimes found naturally in foods and beverages. Sugars, sodium, and ingredients high in saturated fat can also be added during processing or preparing foods and beverages.

Start with Small Changes

Create an eating style that can improve your health now and in the future by making small changes over time. Consider changes that reflect your personal preferences, culture and traditions. Think of each change as a "win" as you build positive habits and find solutions that reflect your healthy eating style. Each change is a MyWin that can help you build your healthy eating style. Use the tips and links below to find little victories that work for you.
SODIUM

Most of us get more sodium than we need. While adding salt to your food is a source of sodium, it may not be the main reason that your sodium intake is high. Packaged and prepared foods such as ready-to-eat products or restaurant meals are common sources of sodium.

Sodium is added to packaged foods during processing such as in curing meat, baking, thickening, enhancing flavor, as a preservative, or to keep foods moist.

SOME COMMON FOODS THAT ARE OFTEN HIGH IN SODIUM

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>packaged or prepared meat, poultry, and seafood products</th>
<th>pizza</th>
<th>pre-packaged rice or pasta dishes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>salad dressings and seasonings</td>
<td>sauces and gravies</td>
<td>soups</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sandwiches</td>
<td>taco mixes</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

You can lower the amount of sodium you eat and drink.

- Use the Nutrition Facts label to compare the sodium in packaged foods and beverages.
- Buy low-sodium, reduced sodium, or no-salt-added products.
- Look for fresh, frozen, or canned vegetables without added sauces or seasonings.
- Choose fresh or frozen poultry, seafood, and lean meats instead of prepared or ready-to-eat products.
- Cook more often at home to control the sodium in your food.
- Add herbs and spices instead of salt to recipes and dishes.
Breakfast: Make it a habit

Eating breakfast regularly can help your child do better—and behave better—in school. Here are ideas for getting into the breakfast habit despite the morning rush.

Keep it simple

Breakfast doesn’t have to be complicated. It could be as simple as whole-grain toast topped with cheese and a sliced pear or a nutritious cereal with nonfat milk and fresh or frozen (thawed) fruit. Another easy idea: Make scrambled eggs in the microwave. Just beat one or two eggs with a splash of milk in a microwave-safe bowl. Cook on high for 1–2 minutes, pausing to stir every 30 seconds.

Freezer-friendly foods

Plenty of breakfast foods can be made ahead and frozen—and still taste delicious! Over the weekend, cook up a double batch of whole-grain pancakes or waffles, and store the extras in a freezer bag. On a busy morning, reheat a few in the toaster. Breakfast will be ready in a snap. Tip: When storing, place waxed paper between each waffle or pancake. That will make it easier to pull the frozen ones apart.

Eat at school

Some kids need extra time in the morning before they feel hungry. Eating breakfast at school will give your youngster’s stomach time to “wake up,” while freeing up a little morning time for both of you. Plus, getting breakfast in the cafeteria means a healthy meal and another chance to eat with her friends. Note: Check with the school office to see if your family qualifies for free or reduced-price meals.

---

Play with MyPlate

Help your youngster learn how to build a healthy meal by creating his own “plate of food” based on the MyPlate food guide.

1. Together, look at a picture of MyPlate (choosemyplate.gov/myplate), and ask him to tell you about it. He will notice that about half the plate is fruits and vegetables, a little more than a quarter is grains, and slightly less than a quarter is protein. Plus, there’s a cup for dairy.

2. Let your child cut pictures from old magazines for each category. With a marker, have him divide a paper plate into the MyPlate sections. Then, he could glue the pictures where they belong.

3. Post his MyPlate where he can see it during meals. It will be your youngster’s healthy model as he fills his real plate!
The whole outdoors is a playground

Falls cooler weather makes for an ideal time to play outdoors. These fun activities will get your youngster outside and moving around.

Go on a scavenger hunt. Make a list of common outdoor objects. For younger kids, try an ABC list like acorn, barking dog, cat, dandelion, and so on. Older kids might enjoy a theme-based list, such as "items found in a park" or "landmarks around town." Buddy up to run around and mark off the items on your list.

Hold a bike rodeo. Suggest that your child invite friends for a bike rodeo. Chaperone as they meet at a park or school blacktop (helmets required). They could "follow the leader" on their bikes. Or they can draw a zigzag path or a big figure eight with chalk and then bike along it.

Hula hoop games

Your child might be surprised to learn that hoops have been popular playthings for thousands of years. In fact, children in ancient Egypt, Greece, and Rome shaped hoops from dried grapevines and rolled them along the ground using sticks. For a more modern twist, suggest these contests:

- Form a circle with everyone holding hands. Place a hula hoop over one pair of clasped hands. On a signal, begin moving the hoop around the circle — along each person's arm, over her head, and down the other arm — without breaking hands. Time how long it takes to complete the circle. Then, start again, and try to beat your time.
- Who can keep her hula hoop going the longest? Begin with spinning your hoop at the waist. Move on to variations like spinning in the opposite direction, spinning while standing on one leg, or even spinning more than one hoop.

Q&A Nutritious backpack snacks

Q: Several days a week, my son goes straight from school to after-school programs. Can you suggest healthy snacks that will survive in his backpack until the afternoon?

A: Snacks can give your son energy for his after-school activities. The trick is finding some that are crush-proof, don't require refrigeration — and are nutritious.

Good options include:
- trail mix of nuts, dried fruit, and pretzels
- air-popped popcorn
- fruit cups packed in their own juice
- homemade cracker sandwiches made with whole-grain crackers and any nut butter
- fresh fruit like peeled tangerines, pineapple or melon chunks, or grapes that have been washed, dried, and stored in a zipper bag

Be sure to send things your child will eat by involving him in the process. Take him food shopping with you, and let him help prepare and pack the snacks.

A is for apples

September is apple season! Take advantage of all the varieties available with these quick recipes.

Apple oatmeal. Combine 1/4 cup rolled oats, 1/2 cup water, and 1 tsp. cinnamon in a microwave-safe dish. Microwave on high for 1 minute. While the oats are cooking, peel, core, and chop 1 apple. Add to oats and cook for another minute.

PB & apple sandwich. Cut an apple in half horizontally, and remove the core. Slice each half into three rings. On half of the rings, spread 1/4 tbsp. peanut (or almond) butter and drizzle with honey. Top each one with a plain ring. You'll have three apple sandwiches.

Idea: Combine crispy fall apples with a science lesson by showing your child how to keep cut apples from turning brown. Have her drop apple slices in a bowl containing 4 cups water and 1 tbsp. lemon juice. Soak 2–3 minutes, and drain. Explain that the acid in the lemon juice stops the chemical reaction that turns apples brown.

We've all been there. You go to pick up your sweetie from preschool. You're ecstatic to see your preschooler and they are over the moon to see you. You hug, you kiss, you gather up their belongings and you scoop them into your arms. Then, you ask the question that parents have been asking since, it seems, formal schooling began:

How was your day?

It's a simple question. Only 4 words. You anticipate a long list of activities, lessons, learning experiences and social accomplishments! You want to hear everything. You are giddy. Did they paint? Did they color? What songs did they sing? Did they get to play outside or was the playground too wet?

But...

If you're lucky you get, "Good." If you are not as lucky you may not even get that. It's frustrating for parents because we are dying to know all about our little ones' days. Sure, we can ask their preschool teachers... and we do. However, preschool communication via the teachers just isn't the same. You want to share the conversation with your child.

You may find yourself wondering if they are not having fun at their child care center, or worse, if they're mad at you for leaving them. The reality is that it's much more likely that none of that is the case. Unless they are having problems at preschool or at home, or are showing signs of delays or emotional issues, then there is no reason to read too much into it. Their clamming up may be defating or even annoying but it shouldn't be of concern to parents.
The question, however, remains, "Why don't they tell me about their day?" This is a parenting conundrum that baffles many. You are certainly not alone. There are a few possible reasons why your kids may get quiet when asked about their day.

They may not remember some of it. They are, after all, still quite young. If their teacher reads a book before nap, they might as well have read it last month. It's like someone asking you to recall what happened on your favorite TV show 6 weeks ago. You might be a bit hazy on the details.

They are excited to see you and don't want to talk about daycare and preschool. YOU are here now. Forget preschool! Let's go to the park!

They don't associate you with preschool or preschool with you. Some children simply think that home and daycare or preschool are two separate spheres and that the people and activities in each place rarely mix.

The answer may also be "none of the above." Toddler and preschooler psychology can be complex and kids' minds can work in very mysterious ways. The truth is, they may have their own set of reasons for keeping quiet about their day.

However, whatever the reason, there are some simple things that you can try to get them engaged in talking with you. Here are tips to help improve daycare and preschool communication to get your child to share their day at preschool:

Ask specific questions. "How was your day?" is just too general. It doesn't really hold a lot of meaning to a young child. It also leaves the conversation open for a very vague answer. The best way to get a lot of great information is to ask a lot of really good questions. Ask them things like, "What did you have for lunch?" or "Did you enjoy art today? Did you paint or draw?"

Wait until they have had a moment to decompress. Think about it from your perspective. If you got picked up each day from work and were immediately drilled about your day, how receptive would you be? Would you want to immediately start chatting about everything that you had done that day? Probably not. So, let them ride in the car for a bit, have a snack or even (gasp!) watch 10 minutes of TV before questioning them about their day.

Find ways to engage them in preschool activities at home. This will help them to make the home-school connection which is so key to early childhood education. It is a lot of fun for parents too! Try buying books that you know that they are reading at school. OR, if you know that they are learning about a specific topic then plan a "field trip" to learn more about the unit.

Modeling behaviors, language and pretty much everything for your kids is the best way to get them to do what you want. It's a huge part of parenting. Therefore, if you want them to talk to you about their day then tell them about yours. Tell them what you ate for lunch or that you went to a meeting and met new people. If you learned something new, then tell them. For example, "Today at work, I learned all about my new computer and how it works. I still need to practice but I am getting better." This type of modeling will encourage them to share with you.

If you try these tactics, you will likely have some success in getting that little mouth moving to improve preschool communication. However, sometimes kids just don't want to share. You should be respectful of their privacy, as well. If they feel that they would rather not talk then don't force them. Kids don't have to tell their parents everything and sometimes children enjoy having their own space outside of their home that they don't have to share with siblings, parents or other family members.

You can (and should!) continue to ask questions, model for them and engage them in daycare and preschool-related topics. Hopefully, they will open up. Preschoolers can be as quirky as adults and may not always behave in ways that make sense to us. However, if you are getting good reports from preschool and your child seems happy and well-adjusted then there is no need to worry.

Equal Employment Opportunity Program/Funded by U.S. Department of Labor
NATIONAL FARMWORKER JOBS PROGRAM (NFJP)

What is UMOS? UMOS is a nonprofit advocacy organization that provides programs and services which improve the employment, educational, health, and housing opportunities of underserved populations.

What is the NFJP? It is a program that helps migrant and seasonal farmworkers and their families get education and training, improve job skills and obtain jobs that pay good wages with benefits. And, it is FREE to qualified farmworkers and their families.

How can I learn more? Just call us at 1 (800) 279-8667 or at one of UMOS' NFJP offices, or email us at: Shirley.Aviles@umos.org

How do I qualify? You may qualify for the NFJP if you meet all of the following:
- You are US Citizen or a legal resident.
- You have done farm work in the last two years (for example, work with crops, Christmas trees, nursery, dairy, fishery, poultry or other related farm work).
- Your family income is at or below the Federal Poverty Level.
- If you are male and 18 years old or older, you are registered with the Selective Service.

Your family members may qualify, too!!

What services does NFJP provide? If qualified, you can get help with your resume, interview skills, job search and job placement, supportive services, and job retention.

You can receive education services to help you get your high school diploma or GED, and to improve your English language skills.

NFJP can help you get enrolled into a job training program and pay for the training tuition. You might even be able to receive a stipend while you are attending school.

It sounds too good to be true, what do others have to say?

Jose ~ “Without the help of UMOS’s NFJP Program, I would still be migrating back and forth with my family. UMOS helped me get my GED, found me a job which gave me training as a welder, and helped my family get settled in our community. Thank you so much for all of your help!”

Raul ~ “I was very excited about being able to drive a semi right away. I had doubts, but with UMOS’ help I learned how in 4 weeks and had job offers after training...I didn’t think I could do anything else but farmwork because of my criminal background.”

Learn how to drive this truck.

What kinds of job training can I get? You can get short-term training in many different career fields, including Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA), heavy equipment operation, commercial truck driving, phlebotomy, welding, information technology, and more. Each of these occupations pays good wages, and they are in high demand with lots of available job openings.
